RESEARCH IN PHENOMENOLOGY

Volume XXX 2000

TOPIC
THE FUTURE OF PHENOMENOLOGY

Robert Bernasconi. Almost Always More Than Philosophy Proper. 1
Peter Trawny. The Future of Time: Reflections on the Concept of Time in Hegel and Heidegger. 12
Ronald Bruzina. The Future Past and Present—and Not Yet Perfect—of Phenomenology. 40
Miguel de Beistegui. Toward a Phenomenology of Difference? 54
James Risser. After the Hermeneutic Turn. 71
Dominique Janicaud. Toward a Minimalist Phenomenology. 89
Bernhard Waldenfels. Time Lag: Motifs for a Phenomenology of the Experience of Time. 107
Franco Volpi. Phenomenology as Possibility: The "Phenomenological" Appropriation of the History of Philosophy in the Young Heidegger. 120
Tadashi Ogawa. The Horizontal Character of Phenomena and the Shining-forth of Things. 146

ARTICLES

Rudolf Bernet. The Traumatized Subject. 160
John Lysaker. Heidegger's Absolute Music, or What Are Poets for When the End of Metaphysics Is at Hand? 180

DISCUSSION:
The Work of Charles E. Scott

David Wood. Ethos beyond Ethics: Remarks on Charles Scott. 212
Edward S. Casey. Stompin' on Scott: A Cursory Critique of Mind and Memory. 223
Charles E. Scott. Responsibility with Memory. 240

REVIEW ARTICLES

Daniel Dahlstrom. Heidegger's Deliberations. Review of Besinnung by Martin Heidegger. 254
John McCumber. Infectious Humors. Review of Contagion by David Krell. 260
Diane Perpich. The Demands of Ethical Life: Levinas and Moral Theory. Review of Beyond: The Philosophy of Emmanuel Levinas and Before Ethics by Adriaan Peperzak. 264